

THINKFIRST RECEIVES CONGRESS OF NEUROLOGICAL SURGEONS AWARD
Organization teaching children to make safe choices since 1986

WARRENVILLE, Ill., November XX, 2009 -- On October 26, 2009, the ThinkFirst National Injury Prevention Foundation was recognized as a leader in injury prevention by the Congress of Neurological Surgeons (CNS). CNS presented the 2009 Distinguished Service Award to the of Pensacola, Fla. and Clark Watts, M.D., of Columbia, Mo., to develop a national injury prevention program. ThinkFirst has since developed into one of the largest injury prevention programs in both the U.S. and Canada and has several studies in medical journals demonstrating its effectiveness. The last international training, held at Harvard Medical School in August, included physicians first in
